Narragansett Apple

NARRAGANSETT APPLE

LAST SEEN IN YORK COUNTY !

DESCRIPTION :

Originated on the farm of Jacob H Harmon, Buxton, Me., in 1873. The tree is reported as a free grower and very hardy; but a rather shy bearer.

Fruit medium to large, conical, pale yellow, washed and splashed with crimson, and heavily overlaid with a deeper shade of crimson on the sunny side, with numerous small white dots; cavity deep, flaring; stem short, stout; basin medium, slightly corrugated; calyx small, closed; flesh white, tender, rather dry, mild subacid; core small. Good. November and December.

This apple has a strong resemblance to Mother [conical] in size, form and general color, but is a darker crimson –almost as dark as Black Oxford in some cases – and the flavor is not as good as Mother.
