Why MOFGA Certified Organic is Important to Our Farmers

“We choose to certify our organic practices because the certification process provides ourselves, both as farmers and as food consumers, and our customers with a third-party screening process to safeguard our food from compounds not created by nature that may be harmful to our health and the ecology around us. The MOFGA certified organic label provides consumers with a convenience and level of food safety we can all trust.”

“We believe the organic label most simply indicates to our customers our commitment to healthy and sustainable farming choices.”

“We have chosen organic certification because it means that we have chosen to follow a rigorous, demanding procedure of disciplined practice and documentation to produce food that is healthy for humans and respectful of our dependence upon the natural world. For us, certification also means a commitment to support the strongest form of political advocacy on behalf of all farming operations, large and small.”

“We believe the organic label most simply indicates to our customers our commitment to healthy and sustainable farming choices.”

Organic Mousam Valley Mushrooms is run by the Sharood family in Springvale.

Rani and Jack Howe raise Christmas trees organically in Brooks at Skyscraper Farm.

Christine Bolton-Pistole of Gryffon Ridge sells organic spices and herbs.

Organic milk is produced by Cecil Linscott Jr. and Ann Wilson of White Orchard Farm in Frankfort.

“The principles of certified organic agriculture are fundamental to why we came to be farmers. We certify so that our customers may know the standards to which we hold ourselves and so we can contribute to what it means to be a certified organic farm.”
Welcome to Organic Maine! Since you’ve picked up a copy of our 2015 edition, I am going to make the assumption that you have at least a passing interest in organic food. My hope is that you have a passionate devotion to buying organic and that you do so at every opportunity. If true, you would not be alone. Every day, the number of people buying organic is growing. This year more than 43 million Americans will buy organic. Among the group known as millennials (ages 18 to 34 in 2015), more than half consider organic to be a key attribute of the food they buy.

This is tremendous news. It means millions of young people are seeing the value of buying good, healthful food raised under strict organic standards. These standards, created by organic farmers, food processors, retailers, and consumers, and verified by certifying agencies like the Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association provide assurance that organic practices are followed in food production and processing.

There are many rules organic farmers agree to follow to produce the food you seek. Organic growers will not use genetically modified seeds to grow your food. They will not use growth hormones like recombinant bovine growth hormone (rGH) in their dairy herds. They will not use antibiotics as a routine part of their production system. If antibiotics must be used to treat animal illnesses, the treated animals are removed from the organic herd. This assures that when you buy certified organic meat or dairy products, you are buying antibiotic free food.

Organic farmers do not use synthetic or persistent pesticides and they always aim to work with nature to create soil that is rich in nutrients. Rich soil helps organic farmers grow nutritious food that you and your family can trust and enjoy.

Our 2015 edition of Organic Maine! offers a comprehensive list of all the MOFGA-certified growers and food processors in the state by county. It lists the location of farmers’ markets in Maine and provides you with a list of businesses that support MOFGA and the organic option. We are pleased that you are looking to buy MOFGA certified organic food. You’ll know it by the certified label. When you buy certified, you are supporting Maine farmers who are dedicated to creating a healthful environment and healthful food for you and your family. And by all means – Enjoy!

Organic Maine! is a directory of MOFGA Certified Organic Farms, Foods and Products published annually in June by the Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association (MOFGA), PO Box 170, Unity, Maine 04988; (207) 568-4142, mofga@mofga.org, www.mofga.net.

Organic Maine! is distributed to MOFGA members and subscribers to The MOF&G; and to retail businesses and community organizations with interests in local, organic food. The directory is also available to the 50,000 visitors who attend MOFGA’s Common Ground Country Fair every year in September.

The publication of Organic Maine is paid for by advertisers. Not all advertisers are MOFGA certified organic.

Thanks to Susan Leiter, our volunteer advertising coordinator.

An index of our advertisers appears on page 55.

Organic Maine! is produced by the staff of the MOFGA Agricultural Services Program, MOFGA Publications, and MOFGA Certification Services, LLC.

MOFGA, formed in 1971, is the oldest and largest state organic organization in the country.

The purpose of the Association is to help farmers and gardeners: grow organic food, fiber and other crops; protect the environment; recycle natural resources; increase local food production; support rural communities; and illuminate for consumers the connection between healthful food and environmentally sound farming practices.

MOFGA is a 501(c)(3) organization that welcomes your tax deductible financial contributions and volunteer participation.

Volunteer leadership, the dedication and idealism of our members, and a grass-roots approach to carrying out education and change underlie the success of our programs:
- Organic certification • Farm apprenticeship • Technical assistance (phone, mail, on-site visits, publications) • Common Ground Country Fair • Farmer to Farmer Conference, farm and garden tours, other outreach events • Local chapters • Public policy (initiatives in food safety and environmentally sound agriculture)
Celebrate the International Year of Soils

Buy from MOFGA-certified organic producers when you shop

2015 is the International Year of Soils, according to the 68th UN General Assembly. Do an Internet search for “year of the soils” and many interesting websites will appear. This one http://ourworld.unu.edu/en/recommended-reading-for-the-the-un-international-year-of-soils-2015 is a good jumping off point. Closer to home, I can think of no better way to celebrate the importance of soil in your daily lives this summer than by buying lots of fresh and value added organic products from MOFGA-Certified Organic producers.

Taking soil for granted is easy, but such neglect will be hard on our future. Soil is essential for food and water security, sustainable development, nutrient cycling, and climate change resiliency, among other critical ecosystem functions. Good soils take years to develop, and only minutes to destroy.

Organic farmers put soil first. The standards require farmers to be excellent soil stewards, to monitor its health, and to take steps to build fertility and organic matter content by working with nature and natural inputs. The chemical pesticides that are commonplace in much of farming today and which negatively impact soil biota are off limit to organic farmers. Following the organic standards is not a hard sell; organic farmers understand the importance of healthy soils. Tasty vitamin-rich crops and vigorous livestock are the result.

You can start your season off sweet by picking up some organic maple syrup; there are dozens of MOFGA-certified sugarhouses. A gallon of organic maple syrup is a pantry essential; be thinking of the organic fruit or squash pies you will make later on. Farmers markets across Maine start their summer schedules in May with lots of nutritious greens for fresh and cooked eating, as well as radishes, baby turnips, meats and dairy products. Look for the green MOFGA Certified Logo on banners when you visit a farmers market near you. Another great way to make sure you are never without seasonal organic produce is to sign up for a CSA in the Spring. Over 60 certified organic farms offer CSAs and if you missed out this year, be sure to line one up for 2016. There are also a growing number of processors and handlers in Maine who are MOFGA-certified organic. They buy ingredients grown by certified organic farmers from here and afar and turn them into wonderful value-added products. Coffee, teas, sauces, snack foods, tofu, tempeh…the list is long.

MOFGA Certification Services staff hope you increase your support of MOFGA-certified organic producers as you shop this year. The producers we work with are soil loving, hard working and creative. We are proud to provide this certification service for them.

Have a Great Year of Soils!

MOFGA Certified Organic Farms, Foods and Products

This 2015 directory of MOFGA-certified growers, processors and handlers is a collaborative effort between MOFGA’s marketing staff and MOFGA Certification Services’ staff. It is sorted by county and business name. An index on page 58 enables you to search the directory by the business name or the business owner’s last name. New applicants are shown at the end of the certified list.

We encourage consumers to use the “Find Local Organic Food” link on MOFGA.org to view our regularly-updated, searchable online version of this directory.

MOFGA Certified Organic Beef

Here at Caldwell Family Farm we believe that animals deserve quality of life, every day of their lives. Every fifteen months we participate in Earth Claim’s Step 1 through 5 GAP (Global Animal Partnership) audit process. There are a number of farms in the United States that are audited by this group. We are the only 5 rated farm in New England. Five total beef farms in the entire country have received this status. We are honored to receive this high rating, we believe that all animals should be treated with respect and be well cared for.

We sell Organic beef at our farm as well as throughout the state of Maine at health food stores, coops and restaurants. To locate a business near you that carries one of our many products please go to www.caldwellfarmsmaine.com. We always encourage customers to visit our farm as well as to buy beef. Beef can be purchased by the whole, side, or broken down into individual cuts.

We also offer a number of Organic products including

SALUTE TO MAINE AGRICULTURE

Maine agriculture – from potatoes to tree farms – provides a $13.9 billion boost to the state economy. And with over 1.45 million acres of farmland, Maine ag businesses celebrate a diversity that is second to none.

Farm Credit East is proud to work with agricultural businesses throughout the state, and we are committed to helping young people get involved in agriculture through our FarmStart® and GenerationNext programs. Thanks to our competitive rates and ag-specific financial services, Maine producers have turned to Farm Credit East for support for nearly 100 years. How can we help you?

MOFGA Annual Educational Events

For details and an up-to-date listing of events, visit www.mofga.org or call 207-568-4142

January: MOFGA Day and Annual Meeting at the Maine Agricultural Trades Show in Augusta. Every year MOFGA has a full day of educational workshops on the first day of the Trades Show.

March/April: Introduction to Organic Farming Short Course. A two-day course for those interested in converting their operations to organic or starting an organic farm. Covers soil fertility, composting, green manures, plant insect pests and diseases, animal nutrition and housing, organic standards, and marketing.

March: Spring Growth Conference, Unity. A one-day conference exploring an agricultural topic in depth and from different perspectives.

March through August: Organic Orcharding Workshop Series. Workshops on pruning, grafting and budding, and organic disease and insect control strategies. The series is for beginners and experienced growers.

March: Seed Swap and Scion Exchange, Unity. Gardeners and orchardists are invited to bring their seeds, scionwood and cuttings to share, and to participate in educational workshops.

April: Grow Your Own Organic Garden, classes held in locations throughout Maine. An evening course designed to provide gardeners with essential skills and knowledge needed to transition from conventional to organic gardening. For more information contact MOFGA or the Adult Education office in your area.

April: Earth Day Work Day, Unity. Help us wake up the gardens, finish projects and begin planting.

May, November: Chainsaw Safety Workshop. The chainsaw is a powerful tool, but without proper training and knowledge it can be very dangerous. Work with our skilled instructors for the day and learn to use your chainsaw safely.
October: Nose to Tail Pork Processing Workshop, Unity. Three days of demonstrations covering all aspects of raising, humanely slaughtering and processing pigs.

October: Great Maine Apple Day, Unity. Celebrate the history, tradition and flavor of Maine apples with MOFGA. Displays of rare and heirloom apples, educational talks, as well as apples and apple products for sale.

November: Farmer to Farmer Conference, Northport. MOFGA’s annual conference for farmers is a great opportunity to talk about what works and what doesn’t while learning new ideas from university faculty, fellow farmers and others.

November: Low Impact Forestry Workshops, Unity. For beginning and experienced woods workers to learn and practice sustainable woodlot management, and logging with animals and low-impact machinery.

December: Kitchen Licensing Workshop, Unity. Co-sponsored by UMCE, this course is designed for farmers and others interested in home-food processing for resale.
