Organic Maine!

The 2016 Directory of MOFGA Certified Organic Farms, Foods and Products

Buy MOFGA certified organic foods from local Maine farmers!
Why MOFGA Certified Organic is Important to Our Farmers

We feel that our customers benefit from a third party certification and on-farm inspection. By being a Certified Farm, our small farm becomes a measurable piece of the larger organic farming movement.

Karen and Paul Volckhausen at their Happy Town Farm in Orland, Maine, MOFGA-certified since 1981.

Simon (right) and Jane Frost of Thirty Acre Farm in Whitefield produces lacto-fermented goods made from vegetables grown on the farm.

Alison LaCourse, aka The Maine Potato Lady, in Newport, offers certified organic potatoes, garlic, sweet potato slips and assorted cover crop seeds.

The Quincannon family of Eden Acres Family Farm raises heirloom apples in East Waterboro.

I certify because I believe in the ideal of organic – stewarding my small part of the earth sustainably and providing my family, friends, and customers with safe and high quality produce and herbs. I believe there is education value in the organic label as well and try to share that as much as possible.

Organic certification helps convey to our customers our philosophy and values regarding adherence to high agricultural and manufacturing standards.

I am certified organic because I believe in farming practices that will leave this earth in a better state than when we received it. I believe in growing nutritious food without harmful pesticides and fertilizers.

Thank you for taking the opportunity to learn more about where to find organic products in Maine. The 2016 edition of Organic Maine! is bigger than ever – because the number of certified organic farms in Maine is increasing right along with the number of certified producers across the country.

Nationally, almost 22,000 organic farms, ranches and processing facilities exist. In Maine, MOFGA Certification Services now certifies almost 500 growers and processors.

Nationally, sales of organic food are approaching $40 billion annually and represent about 5 percent of total U.S. food sales. There’s no doubt: The organic food movement continues to build momentum. All this growth in the organic community means we have more choices about where to buy organic products.

Today we often see organic options in supermarkets and food cooperatives. Farmers’ markets remain a great option for finding organic foods, seedlings, flowers and other organic products, and subscriptions through community supported agriculture (CSA) programs provide access to great organic options as well. Demand for organic products is growing, and you can access those products through an increasing number of venues. Organic Maine! points you toward the farmers’ market and CSA options because buying directly through these sources adds to the economic viability of our certified organic farmers by providing them with a higher percentage of each food dollar.

Consumer support is crucial to building a strong organic food system in Maine. Between 2008 and 2014, Maine added about 138 new organic farms – more than any other state. It also placed an additional 30,000 acres in organic production in the same time period and generated gross organic product sales of $54 million. This is good for farm families and for their communities. It is also good for the environment because organic farmers are committed to farming in cooperation with nature under strict organic standards. These standards, created by organic farmers, food processors, retailers and consumers – and verified by certifying agencies such as MOFGA Certification Services LLC – ensure that organic practices are followed in crop and livestock production and processing.

Organic farmers agree to follow many rules to produce the goods you seek. They do not use genetically engineered seeds. They use neither added growth hormones nor antibiotics in their organic production systems. If antibiotics must be used to treat animal illnesses, the treated animals are removed from the organic herd.

Organic farmers do not use synthetic or persistent pesticides, and they work with nature to create healthy soil. Healthy soil helps organic farmers grow nutritious food that you and your family can trust and enjoy.

Our 2016 edition of Organic Maine! provides a comprehensive list of all the MOFGA-certified organic growers and food processors in the state by county. It lists the locations of farmers’ markets in Maine and businesses that support MOFGA and the organic option. We are pleased that you are seeking MOFGA-certified organic products. You’ll know them by the certified organic label. When you buy MOFGA-certified, you are supporting Maine farmers dedicated to creating a healthful environment and healthful products for you and your family.

Your Guide to Using Organic Maine!

Thank you for picking up the 2016 Organic Maine Directory!

The purpose of this directory is to help you find local AND organic products year round in Maine and nearby. We offer a list of all MOFGA Certified Organic producers (where they are located and their certified products), and a list of farmers’ markets in Maine along with an index of advertisers and MOFGA business members; many of which sell certified organic products.

Following are a few tips when using this directory:

• It is important to note that not all farmers’ markets have certified vendors and not all vendors at all markets are certified organic. You should always ask the vendors at markets about their production practices or, even easier, just ask if they are certified organic!

• Not all advertisers are certified organic. Our advertisers value MOFGA and share values with certified producers, but they may not be certified themselves.

• Please note that not all of the certified organic producers listed will have all the certified products listed all the time. This is caused by: seasonal variation and changes in availability; challenges in the supply chain and infrastructure; i.e., a certified business may be approved to produce a particular product, but may not be actively offering that product for sale.

There are almost 500 MOFGA certified organic farmers and processors who are dedicated to the wellbeing of Maine’s environment, people, and economy. Thank you for your interest in finding and supporting them!

Organic Maine! is a directory of MOFGA Certified Organic Farms, Foods and Products published annually in June by the Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association (MOFGA), PO Box 170, Unity, Maine 04988; (207) 568-4142, mofga@mofga.org, www.mofga.net.

Organic Maine! is distributed to MOFGA members and subscribers to The MOF&G, and to retail businesses and community organizations with interests in local, organic food. The directory is also available to the 50,000 visitors who attend MOFGA’s Common Ground Country Fair in September. Publication of Organic Maine is paid for by advertisers. An index of our advertisers appears on page 65.

MOFGA is a 501(c)(3) organization that welcomes your tax deductible financial contributions and volunteer participation.

Volunteer leadership, the dedication and idealism of our members, and a grassroots approach to carrying out education and change underlie the success of our programs:

• Organic certification • Farm apprenticeship • Technical assistance (phone, mail, on-site visits, publications) • Common Ground Country Fair • Farmer to Farmer Conference, farm and garden tours, other outreach events • Local chapters • Public policy (initiatives in food safety and environmentally sound agriculture)
ORGANIC FOODS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN IMPORTANT TO ME – for my own health, for the health of the environment and for the economic and social health of my community. Now, with two young children, the impact of supporting organic is even more powerful.

In 2015 the World Health Organization announced that glyphosate, the world’s most widely used herbicide, and one of the active ingredients in Roundup, is carcinogenic to humans. That same year an extensive study by Washington University researchers confirmed that organic-eaters are exposed to far fewer pesticides. The study, the largest of its kind, looked at the dietary exposure of more than 4,400 adults and children to pesticides used on food and found conventional produce eaters had double the levels of pesticides compared with organic produce eaters.

Organic food is becoming more widely available in most of the country, and today even big box stores carry organic products as more and more people are concerned about the issues mentioned above. By picking up this copy of ORGANIC MAINE! you have a great resource in hand to support organic growers directly; at farmers’ markets, through CSAs, farm stands, pick-your-own farms, and more.

Russell Libby, MOFGA’s former director, famously advocated the tremendous benefits of getting to know the farmers and processors who grow and make your food. Notably, he said that if we spend ten dollars a week buying local produce and locally made goods, we can change our communities for the better, and agriculture for the better. Spending $10 on local and certified organic products will not only assure you that your money stays in the community, it also will assure you that the products you buy are grown through verified farming practices that promote ecological balance, soil conservation, and biodiversity.

A recent survey of MOFGA members shows that more than half of MOFGA’s supporters are neither farmers nor gardeners. These supporters have been and remain critical to the growth of Maine organic agriculture. So thank you, organic consumers – You are making a difference!

This 2016 directory of MOFGA-certified growers, processors and handlers is a collaborative effort between MOFGA’s marketing staff and MOFGA Certification Services’ staff. It is sorted by county and business name. An index on page 55 enables you to search the directory by the business name or the business owner’s last name. New applicants are shown at the end of the certified list.

We encourage consumers to use the “Find MOFGA Certified Foods” link on MOFGA.org to view our regularly-updated, searchable online version of this directory.

“Four Generation Family Farm”

MOFGA Certified Organic Beef

Here at Caldwell Family Farm we believe that animals deserve quality of life, every day of their lives. Every fifteen months we participate in Earth Claim’s Step 1 through 5 GAP (Global Animal Partnership) audit process. There are a number of farms in the United States that are audited by this group. We are the only 5 rated farm in New England. Five total beef farms in the entire country have received this status. We are honored to receive this high rating. We believe that all animals should be treated with respect and be well cared for.

We sell Organic beef at our farm as well as throughout the state of Maine at health food stores, coops and restaurants. To locate a business near you that carries one of our many products please go to www.caldwellfarmsmaine.com. We always encourage customers to visit our farm as well as to buy beef. Beef can be purchased by the whole, side, or broken down into individual cuts.

We also offer a number of Organic products including

- Certified Cow manure compost $50.00 per yard
- Raised Bed Mix $45.00 per yard
- Fabulous Home sites available for vegetable and animal farms.

MOFGA Business Members

MOFGA salutes businesses throughout the state who have demonstrated their commitment to MOFGA’s work by joining our business member category. Check out our website, www.mofga.org, for hotlinks to theirs.

MOFGA membership should not be confused with organic certification. Although some members are certified organic producers, organic certification is not required to be a business member of MOFGA.

MOFGA Annual Educational Events

For details and an up-to-date listing of events, visit www.mofga.org or call 207-568-4142

January: MOFGA Day and Annual Meeting at the Maine Agricultural Trades Show in Augusta. A full day of educational workshops on the first day of the Trades Show.

March: Spring Growth Conference, Unity. A one-day conference exploring an agricultural topic in depth and from different perspectives.

March through August: Organic Orcharding Workshop Series. Workshops on pruning, grafting and budding, and organic disease and insect control strategies. For beginners and experienced growers.

March: Seed Swap and Scion Exchange, Unity. Gardeners and orchardists are invited to bring their seeds, scionwood and cuttings to share, and to participate in educational workshops.

April: Grow Your Own Organic Garden. Evening classes are held in locations throughout Maine, and provide gardeners with essential skills and knowledge needed to transition from conventional to organic gardening.

MOFGA’s Conservation Farm Tours take place during the growing season, co-sponsored by local soil and water conservation district partners to highlight conservation strategies on farms and woodlots throughout the state.

April: Earth Day Work Day, Unity. Help us wake up the gardens, finish projects and begin planting.

June: Farm & Homestead Day - A Hands-on Skill Sharing Event, Unity. Learn how to build a goat milking stand from poles and scavenged wood, mow with a scythe and learn how to maintain your blade, build a bluebird nesting box, try your hand at building and operating a chicken tractor or go for a walk to learn about edible and medicinal plants. All that and more.

May through September: Farm Training Projects in locations around Maine. Workshops offer apprentices and other beginning farmers a chance to visit farms and learn from farmers about their areas of expertise.
July: Poultry Processing Workshop, Unity. Join MOFGA’s livestock expert Diane Schivera and MOFGA’s Jason Tessier of Tessier's Farm as they teach you how to successfully and sanitarily process your own meat birds.

October: Great Maine Apple Day, Unity. Celebrate the history, tradition and flavor of Maine apples with MOFGA. Displays of rare and heirloom apples, educational talks, as well as apples and apple products for sale.

September: Common Ground Country Fair, Unity. MOFGA’s premier event celebrating rural living. Three full days of educational talks and demonstrations, entertainment, delicious Maine-grown organic food and products from local artisans.

October: Nose to Tail Pork Processing Workshop, Unity. Three days of demonstrations covering all aspects of raising, humanely slaughtering and processing pigs.

November: Farmer to Farmer Conference, Northport. MOFGA’s annual conference for farmers is a great opportunity to talk about what works and what doesn’t while learning new ideas from university faculty, fellow farmers and others.

November: Low Impact Forestry Workshops, Unity. For beginning and experienced woods workers to learn and practice sustainable woodlot management, and logging with animals and low-impact machinery.

November: Chainsaw Safety Workshop. Work with our skilled instructors for the day and learn to use your chainsaw safely.

December: Kitchen Licensing Workshop, Unity. Co-sponsored by UMCE, this course is designed for farmers and others interested in home-food processing for resale.
